And the ÅÅÅÅopt outeÅÅÅÅ capabilities offered by some mobile marketing companies doneÅÅÅÅ typically apply to apps, the Journal noted. Despite the fact that Apple says apps must ask permission before revealing information, the Pumpkin Maker iPhone app, for example, transmits location information to an ad network without doing so, the Journal found. The developer will be required to provide privacy details when they submit their next app update. Permission is not required on either AppleÅÅÅÅ or GoogleÅÅÅÅ platform to access some forms of the device ID, or to send it to outsiders. No Written Privacy Policies Several of the app makers involved said the data they transmit isneÅÅÅÅt linked to the individualeÅÅÅÅs name, while details such as age and gender are volunteered by users, the Journal noted. noted.
